THEY ACTUALLY DO THE WORK.

Food Eaten is Worthless Unless Digested—Some Stomachs Must Have Help. Food taken into the stomach, which, from the nature of the food or the condition of the stomach, is not digested, is worse than no food at all. It is a great many dyspepsias go only this far with their reasoning. They argue with themselves that because their stomachs do not do the work given them, they must be starved. It would be just as sensible for a business man to cut down his business to his own capacity as it is for a man to starve himself to relieve his stomach. The sensible business man employs help, and goes forward with his business. Likewise the sensible dyspeptic will employ help for his stomach and give his body proper nourishment. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets actually do the work assigned to them. They relieve weak and overworked stomachs of a weak portion of digestive action. Their component parts are identical with those of the digestive fluids and secretions of the stomach and they simply take up the place of food in the work. They themselves digest the food and supply the system with all the nourishment contained in what is eaten and carry out nature's plans for the sustenance and maintenance of the body.

How much more sensible is this method than that employed by many sufferers from weak stomachs. By this means the body and brain get all the good, nutritious food they need and the individual is properly nourished and equipped to carry on his work and perform his duties. He could not possibly be in proper working condition by starving himself or employing some new fangled, inefficient diet that does not contain enough nutriment for a year-old baby. A strong man, doing strong work, must be properly fed and this applies to the brain as well as the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by relieving the stomach of its work, enable it to regenerate and regain its normal health and strength. Nature repairs the worn and wasted tissues just as she heals and repairs the bones of a broken limb which is of course not used during the process of repair.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box and they are the best thing in the world for the stomach that does not try to sell something in the place of that "just as good." Their unqualified merit and success and the universal demand for them has placed them within the reach of every one.

HISTORIC CAPITOL

and considered by critics the finest Washington edifice in existence. The building has sheltered many famous law-making bodies, including the Constitutional Conventions of 1820-30, of 1850-51, and the Secession Convention of 1861-62. The Underwood Convention of 1890-91 was held here, as did the Witherspoon Convention of 1901-02. Robert E. Lee received his commission as commander of the Virginia troops there, and the building was the capital of the Southern Confederacy until the evacuation in April, 1865.

THE CAPITOL DISASTER.
The building was the scene of a disaster in 1870 when the floor of the chamber of the Supreme Court of Appeals gave way and fell to the floor of the hall of the House of Delegates, killing 6 persons and wounding about 30 more. A contested election case for the majority of Richmond was being heard on some legal point before the court at the time. The floor, it is said, was originally laid by the British in the morning and was covered by bare depending to and beneath it. Later these bars were said to have been removed, weakening the floor, and the dense crowd which thronged the chamber at the time of the disaster had rushed up the stairs and into the room, from the hall below, caused it to collapse.

The old building has echoed the oratory of the brilliant galaxy of Virginians, and sheltered the others of that famous group that adorn the history of the Commonwealth during the latter years of the eighteenth and the first half of the nineteenth century. Hardly less illustrious are the men who have served their State in the old Capitol during the last half of the nineteenth century.
